▼ Short Description [\[hide images\]](#)

Boulder Meadows is a favorite spot for both horse groups as well as hikers as several Forest Service trails pass through this area.

▼ Long Description [\[hide images\]](#)

Welcome to Boulder Meadows - home to a variety of wildlife including a small pack of gray wolves.

For the easiest route, turn east from US 95 about a mile north of Naples onto the Twentymile Creek Road. This becomes Forest Service Road 408. Go about 12 miles and turn south onto FS Rd. 427. Road signs at all major junctions will keep you on the right track. As of July 1, 2007, a road washout at the Boulder Creek bridge prevents driving beyond the two mile on Rd. 427. Getting past that point will require a horse, mountain bike or shoe leather to get the remaining mile to the cache. Don't fret, it's an easy trip on a gated, gravel road.

For a terrific view, take FS Rd. 427 to Black Mountain Lookout. You'll also enjoy nice views of Chimney Rock, Mt. Roothan and Gunsight Peak on your way back to Naples.

The roads are suitable for most all vehicles but remember that they are single-lane with turnouts. Watch for oncoming traffic.

Tried to get in to this cache today but there was still to much snow on the road. Made to to the 2624 intersection, about 3 miles from the cache and decided to come back later instead of hoofing it through the snow. In hindsight I could have brought my ATV and made it. It was worth the ride up the road, I saw a herd of turkeys (20 or so) and momma and baby moose, then 3 deer- wildlife abound[:)] Rolling Oldies the bridge is fixed, you can drive to within 50ft. of the cache. Neat area tucked away back there. well-maintained trails. The coin has been taken by others who signed log this Summer> seems cache was found more than once by non-cachers. I re-hid the cache better and left a neat coin and fish derby pin. T - carabiner. tftth

I decided to find one of my Dad's caches while I was out with him for Father's day and this one happened to be in a really pretty setting! After finding the cache we were walking through the meadows and came up on a new little fawn. It was kind enough to not move while I snapped some photos. I left a Lackeys geocoin in the cache. TFTC!
